

The History of a Black Presbyterian Church

1939

A Community Displaced

In Philadelphia, Center City's established Black communities were being displaced and pushed to other sections of the City.

Institutions and businesses that served the community either relocated or shut down. With most members now residing in West Philadelphia, Lombard Central Presbyterian Church followed suit.

